MDVLCraft skill trees

Version 2.1.83. Pick 2 of the 19 archetypes on the Archetypes tab: the pair is your vocation, one skill tab holding both archetypes' bases (left and right) and the vocation's own skills and bonuses (the centre column). The tab gives 1 point to start and 1 per level, with no level cap. The table gives the totals of each base; percentages add to the base value and Max Health is in half-hearts. Abilities (spells and techniques) go on the ability wheel; Epic Fight skills go in the Combat Skills box of the abilities screen. Then each archetype has its own section: a page listing every skill in its base, then every vocation it is part of with that pair's own skills (so each vocation appears under both of its archetypes). Abilities marked (Modified) are designed but not built yet: they can be unlocked and put on the wheel but do nothing.

Everyone knows Guard, Parrying, Parry – Absolute Deflection and the souls-like dodge and step. Assassin, Thief, Stalker and Wanderer also get Precise Parry; Wanderer and Druid get Affliction Immunity. Hostile mobs have 20% more health and deal 10% more damage. A respec picks both archetypes again: the new vocation starts at three quarters of the old level with all its points to spend. Players also pick a race, a Martial class and a job (Origins) on first joining; these are listed at the end and are separate from the skill trees.

Origins

Picked on first joining, separately from the archetype trees: one race and one class. A race or class can be changed later with an Orb of Origin (an enchanted golden apple surrounded by eight gold ingots). Each Martial class and Job pair also has its own Origin skill tab: the Martial class's three skills on one half, the Job's three on the other, each ringed by small bonuses of the kinds listed. It earns experience from kills, and changing either origin clears it but keeps its level.
